The Presidents Message April 2006

Dear members, it's been quite some time since our ball at Leonda and the Christmas party which was held at Albert Park Lake (all who attended had a great time). Since then we have been getting our breath and catching up on all our personal work that was neglected when we were having weekly meetings in the lead up to our 80th anniversary, we are still continuing with all the "thank you letters" and the posting out of our books to libraries and other clubs who we think will benefit from the information this wonderful book holds (special thanks to Maria Katris for her dedication). There have been regular meetings of the committee however there has been limited opportunity for me to contribute to the newsletter. We are fortunate to have our new volunteer Stephen J Paltos join us as newsletter editor and coordinator, all the committee members along with yourselves are now the official reporters, therefore if you do not contribute news articles (no matter how small or minor) there will not be any news for the news letter and we will fill it with advertisements and what ever is available.

Since our 80th anniversary ball we have had our Christmas Party only and next major function will be St Constantine & Helen which will begin at St Efstasios church Dorcas Street South Melbourne 930am on Sunday the 21st May 2006 followed by a short walk to our club for our annual celebratory lunch and VCE awards (we still are looking for our youth who completed VCE in 2005, so far we have had four nominations) this includes Kastellorizian of 2006 presentation to Theo Conos, who's done so much for our club and community which has gone unacknowledged. Theo is a very successful business person with a wealth of knowledge and experience a gentle kind person who is very humble about himself. We congratulate him and invite you to attend to show your appreciation.

We have engaged architect Nicholas Katris to come up with a proposal and plans with building estimates for the renovations of the front section of our property. We are proposing to have these with costing and expected revenue for our AGM this year. In this news letter you will find the event calendar for 2006 so please book and pay for yourselves as soon as you can as these functions will sell out very quickly and numbers are limited

Our new WEB Site is progressing with regular meetings and brain storming from John Karis and myself. We should see some of the results of John Karis, David Karis' and (the free input from our WEB host) "GET STARTED" very soon. We still require you to send us more content for the WEB site as it has become very popular from Australia and overseas and we want to keep the content increasing and fresh to keep people interested. If you wish to advertise on this site of ours we will let you know the cost as the enquiries proceed.

I have attended the 25th of March National Day Celebration which was held by the Greek Consul General of Greece at Tudor Court Receptions on the 28th of March there were dignitaries from most of the Greek organisations around Melbourne, I also had the pleasure to go to South Australia to a State reception acknowledging our past Kastellorizian of the year John Kiosoglou this was given by the Premier of the day and attended by approximately 250 dignitaries friends and family from around Australia. During April I and other Kastellorizians attended the reopening of the beautifully refurbished Ithican Society building was present at the announcement of their 90th anniversary ball to be held at Leonda in November 2006 We are going to book three tables all who want to attend will have to pay early as numbers will be very limited as they were with our Ball. Please express your interest to our committee and Pay you money early as you will miss out.

Theo Conos - Kastellorizian of the year

Theodore Conos was born on 17 January 1926 at Bethesda Hospital, Richmond, to Michael Economides and Florence (nee Augustes). At six weeks of age he was critically ill and was admitted to the Royal Children's Hospital where his life was saved. Over the years he has expressed his gratitude and been a charitable donor to the hospital and on his 80th birthday in January this year he requested no presents but donations to the Royal Children's Hospital.

Theo hails from a line of hereditary harbour masters who served under the Turks on Kastellorizo. When the situation on the island deteriorated his father Michael Economides fled with two friends to Egypt in a small boat, and then emigrated to Australia in 1908, finally settling in Melbourne in the 1920s where he opened what is believed to be the first Greek Restaurant in Melbourne it was called "OMONIA Restaurant" and was located, in Lonsdale Street. Michael Economides was the foundation president of the Kastellorizian Brotherhood 1925-1926

Theo grew up largely in Carlton. He went to Faraday Street State School. By the time he was twelve the family had moved eight times and at one stage during the polio epidemic the family moved to Adelaide to escape the disease. His parents then bought a fruit shop in Lygon Street Carlton. Theo attended the Collingwood & Essendon Technical colleges then went on to RMIT to study architecture. Theo worked full time in the business eventually taking it over when his father died, he was 20 years of age when he had to relinquish his studies. He stuck with the fruit shop for several more years, rising at 3 AM to shop at the wholesale Fruit & Vegies market now the Queen Victoria Market Melbourne

When he sold the shop and ventured into the hospitality business he didn't succeed, but he learnt from that experience giving him a strong foundation for his future ventures.

Theo's business success story began in the 1950s when he opened a coffee shop in The Causeway (off Collins Street), followed by "Studio" coffee shops at Northland, Southland and the new Chadstone Shopping Centre. This was the beginning of a long and most successful business career. He rapidly built a business empire controlling 60 businesses over a period of 40 years; at one time he was running 40 shops and employed 300 staff. The businesses comprised of Nibs coffee shops, Ilios restaurants, a plant nursery, Golden Sands Receptions, and 16 jewellery shops, mainly located in Melbourne CBD, Northland, Southland, Highpoint and Chadstone Shopping Centre, Westfield Shopping Centres, Australia on Collins, Collins Place, Bourke Street, also country Victoria and in New South Wales.

When Theo opened the Ilios GREEK restaurant in Lygon Street Carlton, in 1983, Claude Forrell of the Melbourne Age reported: "Ilios is the poshiest (sic) Greek restaurant in town and the best looking eating house in Lygon Street. It is the result of a 25-year dream that has cost Mr Conos $750,000 to build. Quite an achievement for a Carlton born business man whose family came from the tiny Greek Island of Kastellorizo. For 25 years Mr Conos has dreamt of something more than a coffee lounge. Now he has a place of which Carlton and the Greek Community can be proud". (Theo's son Dr Michael Conos recently remarked that it was a big undertaking in other ways too, because Theo, born in Australia, went to Greek school and was taught by Kyria Vraxna to hone his native language)

Theo's son Peter believes that his father's greatest achievement was his contribution to the economy in employing hundreds of Victorians and many interstate workers in the hospitality and service industry. Peter also gave an example of Theo's humanitarianism: "Dad continued to operate a coffee shop for four years when he didn't need to (at the old McEwan's building in Bourke Street) because he felt sorry for the four ladies who were all over sixty years of age and who needed the income."

Theo's greatest sources of pride and love, according to his son Peter, was his family, his Greek/Kastellorizian heritage, employing people (giving them a go - giving them a job) in his many business, the Carlton Football Club and philanthropy. (Theo made the initial kick-start financial donation to build the Greek Aged Care Home Fronditha. When Evangelismos Church was being restored he donated the large stained glass windows. He supports many charities and institutions, including the Royal Children's Hospital.)

Despite the time needed to build and manage his business empire he found time to be involved in the community, sitting on various committees. During the mid-1950s he was President of the Olympic Athletics Club incorporating Football, Soccer, Tennis, Squash and Cultural Activities The Olympic Club was where many Kazzie boys played the sports. Theo was one of the founders, The President and Committee member of the Carlton Gold Coterie for a number of years.

He served as President in 1973 and 1974 and was a committee member of the Kastellorizian Association. (As noted earlier his father Michael Economides was the inaugural president).

Theo was married to Jan Widdicombe for 18 years and has five children - Michael, Peter, Fay, Susan and Lisa. He is their respected father and he speaks with them daily. He has twelve grandchildren - Michael and Janet have Stephanie, Emma, Theodore and Anton. Peter has Sara and Max. Susan has Megan and Jamie, and Lisa and Anthony have Alexander, Nancy, Bella and Gabriel.

In his book A Month of Lunches, Kevin Childs of "The AGE" says that "Theo Conos combines the qualities of successful Greeks in Australia: business hard headedness and romance," and goes on to describe many of his business dealings and his thoughts on sport and Melbourne's heritage buildings. He speaks of one of Theo's romantic gestures: "...he commissioned a series of paintings on Phar Lap, but he fell in love with them, wrote poems to go with them, and couldn't bring himself to sell them." He still has them today adorning the walls of his home.

Theo is also what one would call a staunch Kazzie and he has a remarkable collection of Kastellorizian photographs. He also has a good memory and it is hoped that one day he will complete writing his reminiscences, both on his extensive business dealings and his knowledge of things Kastellorizian.

Kastellorizians have always been seekers of opportunities and success, prepared to work hard to achieve their dreams. Theo epitomises this ethos and from humble beginnings he built a huge business empire "truly and industrialist of his time". He has succeed and continued to hold the respect of his peers along the way and also involved himself in community work and the Kastellorizian Association, this marks him as a worthy recipient of the Kastellorizian of the Year Award.

Honours roll in for new WA Governor

Australia's Greek Orthodox Church has honoured Western Australia's 30th Governor Ken Michael, with its highest award,- the gold cross of St.Andrew.

But the accolades didn't stop there. A few days ago Dr.Michael was also further recognised as a companion (AC) in the general division of the Order of Australia for wide ranging community service of lasting benefit.

The Governor admits he is "overwhelmed" by this recognition of his work in the development and management of road transport systems, engineering, tertiary education, cultural institutions and the Greek community.

Dr.Michael said a stint in WA with regional WA with the state's main roads department in his late 30's was instrumental in developing his passion for promoting regional communities, indigenous culture, history and the environment.

"I come from a technical background and it opened up my eyes to the broader issues, and I think that from then on i was attracted to the concept of making sure that we look at things in a total perspective, a global perspective," Dr.Michael said.

Dr.Michael is Chancellor of the University of Western Australia, a consulting engineer, and a member of the Economic Regulation Authority.

The child of immigrant parents, he remains fiercely proud of his Greek heritage and of being Australian.

He completed a Bachelor of Engineering with first-class honours in Civil Engineering in 1961, before continuing his studies at Imperial College in London, and later getting a PhD from the University of London.

He was given membership of the General Division of the Order of Australia in 1996 for public service and services to engineering.

80th Anniversary party on Kastellorizo

One of the many delights of Kastellorizo is catching up with other Australian Greeks who visit there, sharing stories, and celebrating the feeling of being 'at home' with kindred spirits. And partying!

Paul and Connie Gregory and their sons Thomas and Jason with girlfriend Jenny Barrett, and cousin Justin Gregory (WA) decided to have a party to celebrate the 80th Anniversary of the Kastellorizian Association of Victoria. It was held on two little balconies in Kastellorizo, with a view of the harbour. Altogether twelve people celebrated late into the night. Guests were Maria Katris, Arthur August and partner Jenny Gorman and her daughter Kelly from Perth, Georgina Stewart (Senator George George's granddaughter), and Nicholas Antonas (Vic).

The impromptu party saw them singing old Kazzie songs, led by Maria Katris, aided by Raki from Crete and beer, mezethes and pasta.. Not as elaborate as the ball being held in Melbourne but loads of fun, and by the next morning everyone on Kazzie knew, after enquiring about the singing, that the celebration was in aid of the 80th anniversary of the Victorian Kazzie club. Kyra Varvara was not impressed with the group's rendition of Mana Hara - 'too loud, out of tune, and what were we thinking of.' Good question.

A Koutsoukis in Rhodes

When shopping in a little boutique in Rhodes in October last year the vibrant young woman who was attending to me said that my Greek sounded like hers. I found that like me, she had a Cretan and Kastellorizian heritage. We were so happy to meet each other. Her name is Victoria Maliaraki and her grandfather was Cretan. Her grandmother was Paraskethi Koutsoukou from Kastellorizo.

Victoria told me that she sings and had been to Kastellorizo a year or so before to sing at a wedding. Then she sang several verses of Mikro Mou Kastellorizo in the middle of the boutique especially for us. Her soprano voice had an angelic quality that saw several of the shoppers shed a tear (and me too!). She then sang three more verses which she had composed herself and I have brought them back to share with you, with her permission.

Note - It is difficult to write Greek in roman lettering, but those that understand Greek will be able to make out the words.

Verses by Victoria Maliaraki:

Mikro mou Kastellorizo
Kai polli pikrameno
esi'sai t'omorfoterónisi mou thoxasmena

Hronia etiranithikes
Mes'tin sklavia tin mavri
Ma tora eisai eleftero
Fonazo mbravo palli

Kai tora eise ormorfo
Stolivi sto aiyeo
Kamari tis ellathas mas
Loulouthi mou oreo

Now for my English translation which does not sound nearly as beautiful as the Greek (with just a little licence to convey the meaning):

Victoria Maliaraki, Rhodes
(Granddaughter of Paraskethi Koutsoukou)

My little Kastellorizo
even with so many bitter times you will always be my most beautiful and glorious island

For ages you endured suffering darkness and bondage
But now you are free and we can again call out Bravo

You are now the beautiful ornament of the Aegean pride of our mother Greece
My beautiful flower

A Man of all Tribes

The life of Alick Jackomos

ALICK JACKOMOS: A BRIDGE BETWEEN CULTURES

A patriotic Australian with strong links to the RSL as well as his Greek heritage, Alick Jackomos was a remarkable Australian — the epitome of a multicultural Australian, before that term was invented. A tent wrestler in his early life, he married the love of his life, Merle Morgan from Cummeragunja mission, and became apprenticed to Pastor (Sir) Doug Nicolls. In his busy life he was a welfare worker and activist, a public servant in Aboriginal affairs, an historian archivist and genealogist.

Professor Joy Wandin Murphy puts it well, 'To share the life of Alick Jackomos will be a privilege for those who read this story. Celebration of one's life gives immense pleasure and provides an opportunity to acknowledge how people such as Alick shape and change attitudes from the grass roots to the top. Embracing each other's culture is the ultimate catalyst for peace and unity. May the spirit of our ancestors be with you Alick Jackomos on your new journey.'

Loved by all, dubbed an 'honorary Koori' by Bruce McGuinness at his funeral attended by 1000 people in Melbourne's Northcote Town Hall, Jackomos left behind an extraordinary legacy: a photographic collection of Aboriginal Victorians and more than 1000 intricate genealogies, a powerful tool for the Stolen Generation. He also wrote Aboriginal history and shared his knowledge with schools, universities and Aboriginal organisations.

Professor Colin Tatz, who worked with Jackomos, highlights his activism, 'No account of race relations in Victoria could be reliable, or complete, without a focus on Alick Jackomos. Ethnically Greek, he devoted his life to Aboriginal advancement, bringing sense to what were often pretty senseless situations.'

In A Man of All Tribes: A life of Alick Jackomos, award-winning author/academic Richard Broome and co-author Corinne Manning, have lovingly recreated the life of a man who loved by many who maintained strong links with everyone whose path he crossed: the showground community, the RSL and the Greek and Aboriginal communities.

OBITUARY

AGNETA VOGIATZIS

7/10/40 - 27/2/06

Agneta died very suddenly on 27 February 2006 in Rhodes, Greece.

Agneta was the wife of Leftheri and mother to Kyriako. Agneta came to Greece in 1966 and lived in Rhodes for 40 years. She owned and ran the Savoy Hotel and Stefanel clothes shops with her husband. She was also involved in advising the Swedish tourist bureau about tourist visits for Rhodes and Kastellorizo.

Every Kastellorizian Australian who has passed and passes through Rhodes knows the Vogiatzis family. Whether you stay with them at the Savoy or drop in for coffee and a chat, their couches have been Kazzie central for years. Kastellorizian meets Kastellorizian at the Savoy enjoying cups of tea and coffee and Leftheri and Agneta fill in family trees and ingratiate you with their very warm hospitality.

Agneta was not just a girl who married a Kastellorizian but a real Kastellorizian who knew all the traditions and nuances and ways of all things that make up island life. Her Greek was fluent as was the way she embraced the Greek culture.

I went to Kastellorizo with her in early February this year and as we took a stroll around the island, she identified every species of flower that was starting to bloom. As we walked, she also recounted stories of Kastellorizo from when she first visited to the changes that she has witnessed. I remember marveling at her knowledge of the island and laughing with her, that there are probably locals, who would not know the names of all the flowers.

Agneta's funeral was attended by hundreds, a testimony to the person that she was. Hundreds of wreaths and tributes flowed in from Australia.

So, as the flowers on Kastellorizo begin to bloom this and every spring to come, the memory of Agneta will linger in their scent.
